Brief Synopsis

An in-depth look at the production of the AFM large narrative "Inherited". Featuring in depth interviews and on the scene BTS, All of Us unveils the process of how the best AFM class came together to do the incredible.

Synopsis

‘All of Us’ is an in depth look at the making of "Inherited", the large narrative production of Fanshawe College’s 2026 class Advanced Filmmaking program. As a part of their classwork, the AFM class will come together for 3 short days to shoot an entire short film. Every member of the class will take on a role that would be found on a professional film set, from director to craft services.

Discussions with executive producers and AFM professors Charlie Egelston and Adamm Liley further delve into the background of the production block and how it came to be.

Featuring interviews with some of the best and brightest of today’s emerging filmmakers, including: writer/director Camilo Giraldo, director of photography Branden Emeny, line producer Brenna Girardin and actor Juanes Giraldo, All of Us promises to be a fascinating look at how a class of first time student filmmakers joined together to make a production that can rival the best of what Hollywood puts out.

This documentary is essential viewing for anyone who has even a passing interest in Canadian filmmaking, as it provides a glimpse into the bright future these young visionaries have in store for the next generation.

DIRECTOR, Noah Davidson

Hailing from Hong Kong and studying film at Brock university and Fanshawe college, Noah Davidson has been making films of some form or another for over a decade.

With a strong background in film production, theory and criticism, Noah’s aspiration is to enter the industry as an assistant director, and eventually to become a writer and director.

He enjoys science fiction, horror and all possible blends of the two. His latest project ‘Dark Night’ is currently in pre-production and is scheduled to shoot in May of 2026.
